“ Doris was a truly remarkable woman and I am going to miss her deeply.

Our family lived a few houses down from her's when we were growing up. Our family had four boys and her's -- four girls, roughly the same age. She was like a second mother to us.

I remember her smile, and frankness, and humor and how her door was always open and we kids knew the way to her kitchen cupboard where she kept the cookies and crackers.

Those were good times. Her voice could break through all the background noise at a gathering. I will always hear her voice, like that, breaking through all the background noise to remind me of what should truly be cherished.

I know she wanted to be in a better place. I felt happy just talking with her and I am going to miss her.

“ We have so many great memories of living next door to Doris for 7 years. She was always quick to point out our grass and new additions to our garden. She loved her flowers and enjoyed walking around looking at what we added over the years. My oldest, Jake, learned to walk down her hallway. She'd joke about her glass table when Jake was a toddler. She'd call frequently for help with the computer. She was so funny, very honest, and I loved her personality. We truly enjoyed being her neighbor.

“ This is a "silly" memory but I wanted to share with all of you this one: Doris and I go back over 60 years. One that means alot to me , before we had our "does" every week, our "hair" was important! One day we decided to try out the Beauty School in Plymouth (it only cost $2.00) . We had the whole treatment and when we came out of the "School" we looked at each other and burst out laughing. We were "fluffed" beyond compare. We went home and immediately washed out the "new" do and added this experience to our meanie memories and we had lots!

“ My sister, Dianne, and I are fortunate that Doris shared part of her life with our families. She was a caring, funny, happy, and loving addition. I remember many times that we all laughed together, whether it was in the basement of her home opening Christmas gifts, or grilling steaks in the backyard. She enjoyed the food, the laughter, and the time together. As time passed, Doris and I shared a love of the Southwest. She collected pottery, tiles, calendars, and pictures. She also learned to enjoy Mexican food with a passion! Doris was passionate about life. She enjoyed watching the birds at her feeder by the front window. She enjoyed listening to music all day long. We often laughed at her morning call-arounds as she talked with family and many friends. Yes, she loved life, and family, and friends, and enjoyed times together. She will be greatly missed.

“ Doris was so special to our family. We were so lucky to have “Dodo” in our lives before and after my father passed away. She was always someone my daughters could share their secrets and problems with when they didn’t want mom involved. Doris was also a fun person to be with whether we were going to Xochimilco’s for lunch and going down Memory Lane when cruising around the city or just discussing our favorite Days of Our Lives episodes. Our Thanksgivings just won’t be quite the same without her leading us in prayer as she sat at the head of our table. This wonderful woman was a true gift in our lives.

“ Doris and my mom, Betty Miller became friends when they were 4 years old and remained friends for 70 years until my mom's passing. Tom and my dad, Jim Miller were friends as well. The two couples enjoyed traveling together, as well as spending time at each other's homes. My mom and Doris were born 10 days apart and I would take mom over to Plymouth to visit Doris and the 3 of us would go out to lunch. I continued to visit her after my mom passed. She was witty, funny and loved a good laugh. She has left her legacy in her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She will be missed but her spirit will live on.
