“ The first day that our daughter, Fennel, met Mr Kevin he was dressed like a pirate. She was nervous to have her first art class but by the time she left she could not wait to see Mr Kevin again. That feeling remained the same every day since. Under his mentorship, Fen learnt to work hard, take risks, embrace mistakes, be unique, find her artistic voice and follow her passions. These gifts of wisdom and the love and generosity of our dear Mr K will remain with Fen, her brother, and us, always. Thankyou so much. We miss you. Love always.
Fen (age 10) says: you inspired me to follow my dreams of becoming an artist. You impacted my life in amazing ways. You didn't only teach me art, you taught me how to take criticism and bounce back even in the bleakest of times. You are a wonderful person with a heart of gold and I shall treasure you forever.

“ Kevin was a good friend of mine through most of our yearly years of high school. He was fun, caring, and a talented artist. I remember the phase of him trying to look like one of the Backstreet Boys, and his "doodling" in notes that would put famous artists to shame. Once, he helped me get through a bad breakup with genuine words I carry in my heart to this day. Sending love and support to his family and friends. - Dawn

“ I'll never forget the day we met. I'll never forget the things you said. I'll never forget the smiles and laughs. I'll never forget the memories past. I'll always cherish the quality time spared. I'll always hold dear all the hugs we shared. I'll always remember the jokes we exchanged. And I'll forever morun the day all our lives changed.

“ Mr. Kevin changed our lives.
My little boy met Kevin and met his mentor. They had such a bond and kindred spirit. Mr. Kevin believed in Eli and encouraged him to step out of his safe place and take risks. Yes, Mr. Kevin taught Eli how to do his best work but he also inspired Eli to believe in himself.
I'll forever be grateful to Kevin for his friendship and mentor ship.

“ I remember one of the first times I met Kevin... he came up and started fixing my cloths and talking like not only had we been friends for ages, but we were family. And never, since that day, has he ever acted like that was not true.

Couple weeks ago he came to my house, and started... fixing things around the house. Like everything... he went to the bathroom then came out and said. "yo... I need some towels, cause the sink here is clogged, and I was plunging it and now there's water all over the floor."

Then he took off his wet socks, put em in the dryer... And it's who we were... He know where i lived is where he belonged... Family... pure and simple.

I miss you so much already...

Brother... Love... always

“ I was fortunate to have been able to coach Kevin many years ago when he speedskater. He was a tough kid and hard worker with a great sense of humor. He always gave it all he had on the track. I'll always remember him as a great kid who made those around him laugh and he was well liked and respected by his teammates. Rest in Peace Kevin.

“ So many memories, it's just incredible, to me, that he kept on being the same happy-go-lucky best-friend to EVERYBODY he knew. He was a genuine beacon of happiness, and an inspiration for seeking out happiness in life no matter what's got you down. When we met at Plymouth Canton, I was the new kid (as usual) and he could tell I lived my life in a hole pretending I knew how to be happy with life or myself. He pulled me right into his circle of life, friends, acceptance, love etc. I felt like I didn't have a choice; he was my people or I was his people. Like a band of misfits who were proud to be. He actually invited me to go to his cousins wedding with him after we'd only met 3 days prior at school. I don't think he wanted to leave me alone with myself. That's EXACTLY the type of person he was to everyone around him. He was the ambassador to the next chapter of my life. I counted on him to pull me up- and he always did. I tremble with sorrow and angst-writing this- I couldn't be more thankful for having him in my life, the times we've had, the memories, friends, and the impact he's had on everybody around him. Words CANNOT do him justice, to say he had purpose is a vast understatement. His personality defined unconditional and brotherly love. Kevin, you're missed like crazy, brother. See you on the other side.

“ We met in 9th grade on the 2nd floor of Salem in our 4th hr english class. I had severe social anxiety and didnt know how to talk to anyone new. I just remember Kevin turning around and sayin something goofy and making me burst out with laughter in the middle of class! Of course the teacher didnt appreciate this but after that moment, where you could find one of us, you could find the other. It stayed this way for a couple years and then, of course, life takes hold and pushed us in different directions. But we never stopped being friends and it was always like it was just yesterday every time we saw each other. You are the brother i never knew i needed and you will never stray from all of our hearts. My deepest condolences to the family and may God always be with you

“ In the few years i have known him He was like a brother from another mother. While no one in this life is perfect...NO ONE but the Good Lord. We had many talks on many things. Many plans for this summer and laughs about past summer trip uo north. I needed a little help and he came and got me last wed. Was really nice having some time with my brotha. Little did i know how short it would be. :( He definitely made some long lasting memories of him in my heart. :( Love ya brotha. :(

“ Art studios can have some interesting things. One of which were these stupid rubber molds that are in the shape of FISH!! The kids paint them and press the fish on paper to get a printed stamp. I hated the way they felt and they were so weirdly big and floppy. Kevin would ALWAYS find where I hid them in the studio and come running out at me yelling “SILLY SALMON!” And chase me with it trying to hit me with it. Just your everyday shenanigans at work with Kevin! You definitely brought a smile to my face and a good laugh when we worked together! You'll be greatly missed.

“ I have so many memories with Kevin I wouldn't even know where to begin on sharing them.. but I do know the one that will always stick with me now and that is when I seen him Sunday night. And his last words to me where i love you bro.. and my last words to him was I love you to brother. I could have asked for any better last words.

“ I saw him the night before and he was happy and singing like he always did. Last words to me were "i love ya mama ill see ya tomorrow" I'll hold those words tight til I see him on the other side. ❤️R.i.p sweetheart. Forever loved n never forgotten!

“ Kevin asked how my day was going and I told him "kinda crappy", he told me he was coming to get me. I said no, that I didn't want to be outside. He showed up, told me to get up, get dressed and we're going to have some fun. Shenanigans ensued! He always knew how to cheer me up. I will forever miss his voice and hugs, and the way he "itched his inner ear" with that funny noise.

“ I am 3000 miles away and not able to attend, sadly. However, I will not forget you. I will not forget that quirky sense of humor and sideways grin. I will not forget how you always had your head up even when your chips were down. Although its been a decade, wish we could jam one more session. We May not have been the closest friends but it always seemed like our friendship never dissipated even when we didnt talk for a long period of time. No matter how long in between, it felt like nothing had changed. Its so often that can't be said of long distance friends. Thanks for making my day meme warring last week. Again, so glad I had the opportunity to speak with you once more. I will continue praying for your family throughout this sad time. The world lost am amazingly beautiful and will forever be a not darker without you in it.
