“ Bill and I were so fortunate that Cas introduced us to Arlene. She always shared such fun stories about her work life, and her time with Cas and her family, and grandchildren. We are thankful for her. We wish Cas and family peace and wisdom in this difficult time.

In Loving Memory

It is with a heavy heart that I say goodbye to my dear girlfriend and confidant, someone who brought light to my life in ways that words cannot express. She had a remarkable way of making even the simplest moments special, often with her humor— or lack of humor as she always thought she was funny, her charm and endearing laughter always made me smile. She had a big heart, a unique spirit, and an irreplaceable presence that will be deeply missed. She cared about others more than herself.

She enriched my life with her kindness, her courage, strength, and the profound care she showed to those around her. Her love and friendship were gifts beyond measure, and there is not a single day I will not miss her warmth and her support. Life without her feels emptier, but I will carry her memory with me always, reflecting on the beautiful moments we shared and the lessons she taught me about resilience, love, and joy.

To anyone who knew her, she was more than a friend, a partner, or even a confidant—she was a source of strength and laughter, an irreplaceable part of our lives. May her spirit rest in peace and may we all find comfort in the memories of her that continue to brighten the darkest days.

She may be gone, but she will forever remain in my heart. I miss you my friend (and sister). Till we meet again. - Lisa

“ Dear Arlene, I worked with Arlene at the Seyburn Kahn law firm where she was a fabulous paralegal. Her kindness to me always- but especially during my first pregnancy and return to work- cemented her as a great friend. I loved hearing her daily stories about Cas, the grandchildren and being a skate-mom during our tenure as colleagues and after. She had so much love & passion & spark. I will miss her wit and wisdom. -Megan McKnight
