“ Lisa Austin and Shelby, Deborah and I never got to meet you face to face but we learned to love you through Bryan because his love for you showed through many times and he talked about you guys a lot and bragged on you - each one of you. Deborah was a cowgirl and he told us that Shelby you liked horses and Deborah always longed to get you down here where she could take you riding. Austin he was so proud of you and your accomplishments how smart you were and proud of you when you got working for the rescue type paramedics. He talked with me since I knew the Orlando area before it was so congested about trying to find a location where it was easier to commute to work at Martin Marietta. Lisa he loves you so much he bragged on you and I can attest to what you already knew that he was honorable to you and faithful even miles away- which to us is normal the way people should be - he showed us that you and him were our type of people. We looked forward to meeting you. Now that's gone - as you know I lost Deborah July the 1st he was shocked and you said such kind words. During his time here he showed me so much he was a general contractor I learned in Michigan and he showed me how to bid jobs better and we did good. We were both members of the United brotherhood of Carpenters and joiners of America and we connected right away. He showed me things that usually other trades did and I learned from him very much. He thought about moving you guys down here and I figured it was just a thought plus he told us you were promoted at the bank but he always welcomed us to visit if we could up there. We still talked on the phone all the time and I think he got a kick out of Deborah calling him Uncle Bryan. He always had well thought out answers seemingly without thinking and gave me good advice with a couple of situations later after Deborah passed. In a way I'm glad she didn't have to see him go she was really been upset. Lisa we loved you through him and because of his testimony of you and your family. I will always miss him. In my later life especially after I met him he was the best friend I ever had and next to my father was one of the greatest men I knew. So long Bryan. I'm looking forward to seeing you up yonder. And I'm speaking for my beloved wife Deborah . ❤️🙏 Roger E. Johns
