“ Carolyn and I met shortly after I moved to Plymouth MI in 2006. I loved her humor, her sensitivity, her awareness of the Oneness of all that is. We went to Qigong, Reiki shares, meditation classes and other gatherings. We enjoyed going out for breakfast and lunch. Amy, so sorry you have lost your Mom and your best friend.

“ Carolyn only got to share a few brief moments with me. From the second she looked at me, I could see the gaze of a person who knew many troubles and always found a way to laugh about them. She was kind as can be to me and honest in a way most people don't often learn how to express. The last time I saw here, she came over with her daughter Amy to visit my mother. She only got to spare a few words before both her and my mother started giggling like young ladies talking about the new news around town. Before I knew it; Amy and I were shoed off like young kids again. Told to go adventure around the city together, we did. I had a fantastic time hanging out and getting to see my people be happy together. Make no mistake, Carolyn; even though not known entirely - was respected so. I saw the things Carolyn represent manifest themselves through the people who loved her most. Amy showed me a kindness I've only seen in a few people, I know part of her inspiration to be that person was the person who made anyone I saw talk to her smile. Carolyn just like any of us, I'm sure wasn't perfect; but she'd be the first to admit that. Your influence and love will always be remembered; as well as the lessons you taught just by being who you were. Until we all meet again in the ever after; rest in peace Carolyn. Love you.
