“ Quiet moments spent alone right now may bring a flood of unsettled feelings and emotions that leave us with so many questions. There are so few answers that bring comfort at this time. I am lost in my efforts to find just the right words that might help bring even a small measure of solace and peace. There are no words...

I pray that you and I can find, in these quiet moments, that the memory of his familiar smile, or his expression of love and kindness; a moment of shared laughter, a favorite vacation or a special time spent together...will help bring the comfort and peace that my loss for words cannot convey. My love to everyone...always...Karen
