“ I worked with Clif at Stevenson Middle School. The first year I was there, I was "voluntold" to head up the golf club. I thought to myself, "well, well be watching a lot of YouTube!" And then Cliff selflessly stepped forward and offered help. He was happy to teach the kids all the basics, and I learned right along with them! He talked so proudly about his wife and children, and grandchildren. I don't think I ever saw him without a smile.

After his accident at an elementary school in our district, I saw him and knew something had happened. I gave him a big hug and he talked very matter-of-factly about what occurred and that he was getting stronger each day. No "woe is me" attitudes just a smile and the will to get strong again.

Not long afterward, I heard his son has passed away. I was heartbroken for he and his wife and I sent a heartfelt card. A couple of months later, he stopped by to visit our school again. He made a special trip down to my room to thank me for the card. I could see in his face that his heart was broken for his loss and my heart just went out to him! With tears in his eyes as we talked briefly about his son, he still tried to smile and inquire about how I'd been. Before he left, I gave him one more big hug, and that was the last time I saw him.

Clif was a great man! He was always doing for others without anything ever expected in return. The world lost a wonderful soul and my deepest condolences go out to his wife, children, grandchildren, and all the people that will miss him as I do! RIP Clif! Enjoy that amazing golf course in heaven! I will miss you!

“ Where do I begin? From your squeaky knees (which I really thought was the problem, only to learn much later that it was your shoes), non-stop practical jokes, writing messages on my dirty truck that lasted for days before I would notice, to telling the kids at school that we were married when I became a "Williamson," I will never forget the laughs we all had at Stevenson. I wish I would have spent just a few minutes longer with you when you came to visit me at Franklin. Rest easy and fly high, Clif. Coleen - You are in my thoughts and prayers. - Stacy
