“ My friends and I used to go to Zack's in Plymouth all the time, and Colin was often our waiter. He learned most of our names and faces, would take time to listen about our lives, and would sometimes even take time to sit down in the booth with us and give us life advice. He was a very kind and charismatic guy, and while I didn't know him well, he is missed deeply by myself my friends, and I'm sure by every patron of Zack's who was blessed by his friendliness. we're all sending deep thoughts, prayers, and regard to his friends and family.

“ Colin, I remember all the good times we had, and bad, but you always kept your head up. You were a really good example of being a great guy. I sure do feel like you were taken too soon. Im sorry for everything that happened, you deserved better. I'm praying for your family. I will miss you bro.

“ Colin brightened our day, usually Wednesday and Thursday, every week at leos. His humor, his kindness, his willingness and just all around good will and cheerfulness was restless lol. What an amazing human being. I'd like everyone to know that, in what I'd consider a rather small amount of time, this awesome person showed me a great example of what it means And takes to do for others what has been done for you. You truly touched my heart, Colin. And I Thank you. I know I'm a better person because of you and I am grateful for knowing you. Always.

“ I was one of Colin’s teachers (US History/Psychology) at Salem High School and will always remember him as a polite and humble young man. He was a good kid and I will always remember our animated conversations about sports before and after class. As well, I will never forget between classes in the hallways Colin always politely saying ‘Hello’ and asking how my kids were doing. He was a gentle soul and good hearted young man. May God grant him eternal peace.

“ Dear Jack and Nolan - it seems like yesterday that Blake was hanging with you guys prior to the start of the school day on the days Blake and Jack walked to Discovery together (or caught a ride with me). Your worlds just have to be rocked...I know the Potter family cannot grasp the loss of Colin. We had not seen Colin since his "Cutco" sales days but a few months back Nick, Bill and I saw Colin when we were at at Zack's. What a special brother he must have been as he always seemed like a caring and genuine person. We are extending our prayers and thoughts to you both. We are here if there is anything we can do (talk things through, support you ... whatever way we can be there for you both). Our hearts are saddened for you.. God Bless.

“ Colin was actually a regular at my work (Zacks) and one day asked me "hey do you think i'd make good money working here?" and immediately i was thinking "you'd made stupid great money here!" and he was training a week later and became hands down one of my favorite people to work with! he was always so fun and that laugh was contagious. i've listened to a voicemail he left me in march, about 5 times in the last 24hrs. working with him and Jack was some of my favorite work memories and i will forever hold them in my thoughts. i still can't believe it's real. life just isn't fair. so young with so many new memories to make. this is a tough one to swallow. prayers & thoughts to jack and nolan, and colin's amazing girlfriend, kaylee. they were just starting to create beautiful memories together & a pair that everyone loved. my heart goes out to all the family & friends. it's not going to be easy going back to work and not seeing him there anymore..my heart is broken.

I use to tell him I was gonna call Zacks and get him fired 🤔🤔
"So I have to come work here", he'd ask.. he knew exactly why. Not gonna lie, I was jealous you guys had him over there lol. I still have a Leos shirt for him that he asked for. A truly genuine and special soul. One of a kind like him are a unique and rare gift to the world. I'm so grateful for having known him. 🙏
