“ I saw Craig once nearly every summer during our many fabled annual trips to the Dunes Resort. I didn't get to know him as well as I would have liked but he was one of my favorite people. He was so funny, so kind, and so generous in spirit. He will be fondly remembered by all who knew him. 🌸

“ I'm very sad to hear of Craig's passing. We were very close in high school with our shared love of music and theater. We used to drive around Plymouth late at night singing all the songs that were out of our range, and have intimate conversations about getting out to explore the world. I'm glad we both did. Craig was such a sweet soul and I'm sure he's up there playing the harp for us now. My condolences to his family at this hard time.

“ I will always think of Craig smiling. Whenever he was at our house he was always laughing and happy. He was a wonderful person and the world is a little darker without his light.

“ Craig and I used to talk about his singing, and I would tell him that when he was a famous baritone, I wanted to hear him sing the Part of Baron Scarpia from "Tosca." He agreed that would a choice part. I and my wife, Anna, are grief stricken. Craig was a dear friend and especially of our daughter, Jessica. We last saw him at our house following our granddaughters' baptism 3 years ago. We'll miss him dearly.

“ I’m so sad about this. When I returned to college at the ripe age of 27, I felt a bit out of place at first. Craig introduced himself and made me feel like I was home. He was my first friend there and we shared many laughs and great experiences at EMU. Although we hadn’t seen each other in the last few years, he has always remained in my heart. I hope he has found peace, I hope the same for everyone whose life he touched
