“ I will miss Howard. We shared our interest in building trolley models and several times he provided assistance to me on my projects especially when it came to computer design or photography. Howard was one who wouldn't wait around for someone else to do something he just jumped in and did it. He admired the East Penn club modules and thought why not do the same with the DUR? He encouraged the members of the DUR trolley club to build modular layouts then he invited us to his home and shop and provided the know how and labor to get each of us started on our modules. I never saw a layout framework get built so fast as when we were working with Howard. His generosity will always be remembered.

“ Howard became a part of our family long before he married our mom. We could tell from the moment we met him how much he loved and cared for her. He filled our lives with good conversation and even better wine! I am so grateful for the memories we made with him over the holidays, family celebrations, visits to Chicago and casual nights out to dinner. He made our wedding “guestbook” and it is a piece my husband and I will forever cherish. We love you, Howard!

“ Howard and I were best pals from age 12 through high school. College years separated us, then career choices sent us off to different cities.

Howard was an active member of Baldwin High School's A/V Club. To my surprise, he easily roped me in to join his band of brothers (and sister Zoe Farrell). Howard taught me some basic survival skills in audio technology. I was intellectually fascinated because Howard was.

Directly attributable to his patient and highly specific lessons in the late 1960s, in 1974 I had a technology idea that allowed my former wife and me to launch an information processing business in New York City, which I ran for 12 years before selling it to a Wall Street firm. Combining computing and audio technologies (in pre-PC 1974) was our competitive advantage. Howard was delighted to hear the story about what all he triggered in my mind that resulted in my startup's pioneering success in electronic publishing.

During July 2018 in Chicago, he, Debbie, and I had a particularly meaningful dinner, a behind-the-scenes tour of my large church, Fourth Presbyterian, and otherwise celebrated the memories and moments we shared. We three planned to reconvene pre-COVID, yet God had other plans.

From that visit, I remained eager to show Howard and Debbie all the sophisticated audio and computing technology I installed in my organization's office building near Chicago O'Hare Airport. Well over 50 years later, still I give credit to Howard for introducing me to the intricacies of such technical matters.

Heartfelt thoughts, prayers and condolences flow to Debbie and all other family and friends. Surely Howard is at peace in the presence of the Lord we both loved, first with the innocence of children, and then later with adult discernment.

“ I met Howard at a National Model Railroad Association (NMRA) function about 10 or 15 years ago. We shared many interests and as I got to know him I found that we had almost identical backgrounds. We were both raised in adjacent Suburbs in the South Hills of Pittsburgh, we were both the same religion and both were interested in railroads and trolley cars. He introduced me to the Detroit United Railroad Club (DUR) which I later joined. We were both members of a division of the (NMRA) and also of the Pennsylvania Trolley Museum. We both made models of Pittsburgh Railways trolley cars and had layout sections that connected with each other when the club participated in model railroad shows with our sectional layout. I moved away from South East Michigan about 8 years ago but we still stayed in touch. Almost 3 years ago I remarried and Howard was my Best Man and shared photographic duties with my son, a semi-pro photographer. I was quite shaken when I found out he had cancer. I will miss him greatly.

“ I remember meeting Howard many many moons ago when I walked into a local Camera store for studio classes. He and I immediately hit it off. From there our love for Photography grew together, always talking latest gear and techniques. On top of the we both worked at Ford and had many lunches mostly at our standard that he loved going to. I will miss him dearly.

“ I met Howard thru Fairlane Sunrise Rotary when we worked a project with Starfish Family Services taking the children to the Circus. He and I immediately hit it off as we both seem to have a passion for underprivileged children. We continued for many years in the club and in the community taking care of Winter Readiness projects and other places with children S the main focus. I too loved how he recommended wines and pairing when we were out socially. He will be dearly missed.

“ I met Howard at a Bacchus Club event in Northville many years ago. After less than 60 seconds of speaking with him, I knew that we would become friends because of our mutual interest and love of wine. I will always remember the passion he expressed when speaking about a great bottle of wine he had just enjoyed and how much he loved traveling to wine regions. Debbie, you and your families are in my thoughts and prayers at this difficult time.
