“ My heart is broken sis...I wish so many things could have been easier for you...I wish I could have known how much you needed me. Many memories....our vacation to Hilton Head Island....getting to know each other...meeting you on the phone when you found me and being so excited to meet the sister I had been searching for already...we hung up our phones,got in our cars, and immediately started on our trip to meet you...such an amazing day. We got very close...and I will always keep our bond in my heart. You were fun...very funny...beautiful...classy...you listened to me when I needed you...you were a gorgeous, bright, and loving soul...I am so very sad you are gone Jess...I have many great things to say, but above all I watched you be an amazing mom...amazing...and Jamie is pure love and joy? I pray you are at peace in Gods arms Jess?

“ Life is unpredictable sometimes. Several years ago we were contacted by a woman who had been adopted out and wanted to know if we were her family. What a blessing it was to finally have all the sisters together with their mother and grandparents! What a joy to meet a long lost cousin! I'm sorry our time to get to know each other was so short but I enjoyed getting to know Jess more as pen pals when I was away at a discipleship training school. It was a bright spot to receive the snail mail and see the cards she picked out to send. Holding onto those memories.

“ Jessica, Jamie (and Charlie) were our next door neighbors for several years. We were just talking last week about how Charlie did more than anyone to help train our dog and what a debt we owed Jessica and Jamie for all the work they did with Charlie. Jamie, I can't begin to fathom your loss; please know that you're in our hearts and prayers. Jerry and Peg Darnell (and Lucy).

“ No doubt t.o know Jessica was to know a friend. While working in a busy office at outpatient therapy you could witness Jessica taking the time to hear somebody's concerns and responding to them with compassion. I remember we had a patient whose sugar levels dropped so low that they passed out and Jessica was prepared because of her experience with her daughter & had frosting in her purse to help bring the patient back to normal levels until EMT arrived to care for this person. She herself was very skilled with her background as a firefighter and she did not panic in emergency situations. She loved to laugh and share with people she was a bright spot at work. We enjoyed going out to lunch together usually as a small group of us and we continued our friendship even after she left the workplace. She will be greatly missed and I pray she is at peace & my prayers love and support goes to her daughter, Jamie. Also prayers to all her other family and friends that are affected & miss her.
