“ LeRoy Kart — the father of two friends of mine, Jeff and Randy Kart was like a Jolly Giant to me growing up.

He was always welcoming when I visited and had this jovial way about him. A deep respect for his time in the Navy and his perseverance as a small business owner resonated with me. I remember the camping stories, giving us a little ‘guff’ when we all gathered at the Kart house before adventuring out to the record show, concert, wedding, or wherever that particular weekend took us all. I recall how SUPER ORGANIZED he was — the garage had tons of screws and fasteners and everything was in its own place labeled and ready to access in seconds. AND his camera collection; that was a passion, get him talking about that and the history and stories would just roll out as he weaved history and function into the tales he had massed over the years.

The Kart house was always a central point for gatherings, the finished full basement provided endless entertainment with movies and discussion. Some very memorable experiences that many of us shared visiting the Kart household.

Whenever an opportunity arose LeRoy would open that door of “Well, but how are you doing? What have you been up to? “ his deep voice would say “Well, come on by and see us!” His words as open as the Kart household doors to all of us friends of Jeff and Randy “We’d love to have you by.”
