“ When ever I seen Lina she was so full of energy, she was so loving and would do anything for her family and Pete. She would drop everything in a heartbeat to keep him happy. She never complained either, it gave her such joy. Her love for her grandchildren was intoxicating. Her love for God was genuine and open, I always would look forward to her scriptures she would share. My funniest moment with her was when I was visiting her and Snoopy got out of the house and ran off. Lina bolted out the back door and started chasing him down the street. It was dark and we had just came back from the the hospital because she was so ill. In desperation I jumped in my car and followed her voice to find her while she was screaming Snoopy's name. Moments later I found her with him and brought them back home. After it was over we actually laughed about it. I'll cherish the last moments I spent with her. Holding her hand and telling her how much I love her. She touched my face and told me over and over that she loved me too. It was a beautiful goodbye. The last thing I said to her was I'll see you later Lina. We both knew what that meant. I will see her again one day and I can't wait what a reunion that will be. RIP Lina

“ When I think of Lina, I instantly see that warm smile that was always on her face. Her love for her husband, kids and grandchildren sparkled. I always loved seeing the pictures on Facebook of her and Melissa having fun mother/daughter moments and the wonderful smile on Jason's face when he was photographed with his mom, and of course the pictures with the grandchildren...you could just feel all the love and joy they brought her. Her love for her husband Pete has always been strong. Wish this world had more people like Lina. Her love for life showed in everything she did. My love and my memories of Lina will always be strong. ❤️

“ I've only had the pleasure of meeting Lina a few times, her smile contagious, and instantly likeable. I know she has raised a beautiful, compassionate, responsible daughter, and that by itself, is a jewel in her crown. I don't see Lina as a woman who will rest in peace, but a woman who will run up and down the golden streets of Glory, singing praises to our Lord.
