“ With deepest condolences. Every memory I have is of the loving mother who accompanied Amala to all her doctor visits. Amala always wears a vibrant colorful pottu, and looks like a little charmer. I am so sorry that she and her father have to endure this void in their lives. I pray that the void is filled with sweet memories of happy times.

“ ‘She fought the good fight, she finished the race and she kept the faith’.

I lost my beloved friend Maggie who has left an irreplaceable void in me for the rest of my life. She was gentle, soft spoken, her wit and sense of humour was contagious. She had a very generous heart and was always looking for ways to help people in need be it her dear friends, NGOs, kids' education, rural development. She spread her genuine love and was loved. She was a living example and through that she inspired and touched many hearts. She has taught for children with special needs. She was part of the Women's cricket team in Michigan and an NCC cadet. God put the best of people around her. Above all, I always admired how strong and brave she was and forever will be remembered for that.

She married the love of her life. I have great respect for her as she was selfless to let him join the army. Amidst this beautiful journey, life put her to the test to battle cancer. With an infant, she gained all her strength to fight it and made everyday count with her family. I cannot comprehend her thoughts of foreseeing the worst outcome during this battle to leave her almost 3 year old child and come to terms with it. I never doubted her even once as she was so courageous throughout and fought as a brave warrior till the end and never gave up. Her husband, child and family gave her a heartfilled life. While I planned to visit her this season, little did I imagine to bid goodbye for the last time. As much as I wanted her to live, her pain and suffering that I couldn't bear to witness has come to an end to finally 'Rest in Peace'. Her memories will never fade. We will always support the family and she will always live through good deeds she had sowed through her life's journey.

I therefore request you to offer love and support to ease the burden of the family as they figure out their lives without her.
