“ My condolences to my cousins,

I remember Uncle Red coming over to grandma Mag's house for Sunday dinners and she would say what are you doing over here, I didn't cook. Uncle Red would say with all these grand kids running around you cooked. Than he would say boss man (that's what he called granddaddy Clarence) do you hear your wife. My memories go even further than that: Aunt Hazel, Grandma Mag, Uncle Red, Uncle Dozier and Aunt Mildred over on St. Clair street, just sitting around drinking and talking about people. Those were the good old days, when life was much simpler and family had a total different meaning than today.

For some reason uncle Red never called me by my 1st name he always called me Ms. Harper!

Rest in peace uncle red, Love always your great niece Jonwana (in uncle Red's voice Ms. Harper!)
