“ Im sorry for what i said the night before you passed, i hope you knew i never meant any of it and i was just hurt and missed my big brother. I still to this day have not been able to forgive myself, i feel everyday you left this earth thinking your little brother hated you when i didnt. I hated how our relationship fell apart and how distant we became, i wish i could've saw you and apologized and just told you that i love you. As i get older i realize how much i really am just like you. Everyday the way i act walk and talk reminds me of you because we both get it from our dad i miss you so much and i just wish i could hug you one last time.

“ Richie,

Many people did not know the soft, gentle spirit that was deep down, behind that hard shell and thick walls you put up. But at one time, nearly 20 years ago, I got to experience that side of you. The side that helped me get through one of the most traumatic times of my life.

I wish I had another chance to tell you that I love you.

I wish we had another day to sit down and talk like we used to.

I wish we had made amends before you left this Earth.

I hate that you are gone so soon.

I hate the Ambre and the girls must learn how to do life all over again.

I hate that you didn't realize you were loved by so many.

I wish we had just one more day.

I wish we had just one more hour.

I wish we had just one more minute.

It had been many years since I told you that I love you and now I will never get the chance to say it again and that hurts!

You are loved!

You are missed!

Love,

Your big sister, Amanda

“ Rich is a very standup guy. I stood on the outside looking in, but we shared a passion of the ride. I seen him daily, and talk about my young years riding out, bumping the sounds and feeling the vibrations. The one common thread that we shared as co-workers.
