“ *I realized today that I'm a very lucky man. Today I buried a friend, I did not know him long but would have liked to know him longer. He was sick and in pain all the time but when ever I went there ,he always got up to see me and talk. But before he past away he gave me the best gift any one can give. He gave me a most wonderful and caring wife and an amazing daughter , and three brothers that I hope to have a long and pleasant relationship with and one hell of a mother inlaw, who from day one has treated me like her own son. With this blessing and my own two children ,and grandchildren I have the world by the balls.his name is Robert Dethloff the first my father inlaw, who now walks with other great people that helped teach me how to care about others and to love unconditionally. “Papa, this still doesn't even seam real yet. I am surprised on how fast everything happen and how fast you got your angel wings. You are officially out of pain and with the most wonderful group of people in heaven. I am so blessed to have another wonderful guardian angel but I am heartbroken over the loss of you. I am happy that I was able to be right by your side the whole night and be there with mom and grandma as you took your last few breathes. Watch over us please! I love you so much. I promise we will take good care of grandma!

Love,
Monster

“ Dear Tammy, I did not know your father well and only met him a few times, but he seemed liked such a warm, friendly person. I enjoyed the few moments we shared. What I do remember, though, is the true love and respect that Jeffrey had for him. I think he cared for him as he would a true father. Mom also really liked your dad and spoke so fondly of him. So, on behalf of the Solak family, I am so sorry for your loss. Please tell your mother that I am thinking of her and I am sure Jeff and Mom would be as well. Love always, Amy.
