

Sam J. Kennedy

April 24, 1951 - April 25, 2025

Sam J. Kennedy passed away peacefully at his home Friday April 25th, a day after his seventy-fourth birthday, surrounded by loved ones.

Beloved husband of Elaine. Loving father of Hugh (Nicole Michaud) Kennedy, Orin (Megan McLaughlin) Kennedy, Monica (Rachel Freund) Kennedy, Heather (Jason) Johnson, and Lauren (Spencer Schroer) Yagiela. Proud grandfather of Cleophee, Aidan, Caitlin, Claire, Avery, Elliot, Zachary, and Carter. Dear brother of Alexis (Steven) Blomfield, Timothy (Kimberly) Kennedy, and Dennis Kennedy. Loving uncle of Joseph Kennedy, Pamela (Adam) Medjesi, and Douglas Blomfield. Dear friend of Judy Wernette.

He preceded in death by his parents, John “Jack” Kennedy and Marie Scherer Kennedy, and his twin brother, Christopher Kennedy.

Sam helped raise three children, and was a doting grandfather to his eight grandchildren. He led a life of service; as a Boy Scout, educator, development director for several educational institutions, school board president, and dedicated Rotarian. He used his passion for worthy causes to inspire and connect people and organizations around the world. An avid outdoorsman and lifelong Michigander, he enjoyed camping, sailing and hiking with his family and friends. He traveled the world, vaccinated children against polio in Africa, visited Denali, drove a station wagon (and camper) up Pike's Peak, and would never admit to having gotten lost. Sam wove his twin brother's name into the names of his sons, a reflection of the profound impact that his twin's death at a very young age had throughout his life. His father's love of the automobile led to an enduring relationship with a long line of practical and collectible classic cars between Sam and his siblings. Sam loved science, music, the magic of the cinema, theatre, irreverent wit, and the verse of Robert Service.

“ I remember one morning sometime in the 1960's. I went over to Sam's house to see if he could come out an hang out. Sam's mom answered the door. I asked if Sam could come out. His mom said Sam didn't feel to well today. She said his grandfather passed away. She said Sam and his grandfather were really close. I left feeling kind of empty. Kind of like I feel today over hearing Sam has passed away.

We went to school together. We were in the same Boy Scout troop. We developed film together in his basement. Even though we haven't kept in touch very much I alway considered him a friend. The last time I saw him is when he came to the funeral home when my mother passed away in 2016. I thank him for coming by. It meant a lot to me. I could tell you a few more stories about Sam in his younger days. I still laugh to myself thinking about them. What more can I say about a great guy like him?

“ I had the pleasure of Sam’s company for many morning shifts, courtesy of Rebecca’s Restaurant. As a server, I opened the doors at 7:00am and Sam was often my first customer through the door (scrambled eggs, turkey sausage, black coffee - a man of distinguished taste!).

Restaurants attract all types of people, not all of them enlightened, and Sam was a consistent spot of sunshine to me for many, many years. He let me read newspaper headlines over his shoulder as I did my rounds, and we would exchange a daily critique on the “Pearls Before Swine” comic (not that good today / solid gold, etc.). On days when the rush hit early, he would leave the comics behind so I could catch up later. Sam was thoughtful like that. In exchange, I would write a “word of the day” on his carryout coffee. A fun tradition for us both.

It’s the little things that add up to a rich life, and seeing all the pictures at the Funeral Home today - it’s clear how many of those little things Sam invested in everyone around him. He brought out the best in people and challenged us to choose the better version of ourselves.

To his beautiful wife and family - he was so proud of you all. He talked of you often, bragging and laughing and loving. ❤️ I’m honored to have had a court-side seat to a life well-lived.

With love and gratitude,
Lauren Iwema

“ Sam allowed me to steal his giant leprechaun hat many years ago at a NMS fundraising event. I still have it and have worn Sam's hat every St. Patrick's Day since then! Sam enjoyed a bit of mischief like any good Irish American. He was a generous listener and always up for an engaging conversation. A true gentleman and caring human, Sam brightened this world for many who crossed his path in life. His light remains bright in our hearts.

“ Some moments feel memorable at the time, only to fade with the years. Others, we recognize almost instantly as permanent residents of our hearts. Attending one of Sam’s weekly Rotary meetings with him recently was one of those lasting moments. It was a wonderful gathering of people, and sharing that experience with Sam is a memory I will always treasure. - Carol Gray

Sam made several special presentations. One was on Christopher Columbus. Another was on his experience on a US Navy Aircraft Carrier. Sam was impressed with the precision. He was awarded the visit as a navy recruiter.

He did great jobs on both presentations.
