“ Sean... I loved Sean as my brother, we smoked all day long, we were always tight, me, Andrew, Sean, Chris all good friends. I don't want to believe Sean is dead, I really don't and I'm angry because Sean tried adding me on facebook what seemed like a year ago and I added him but removed my facebook so I never got to talk to him, I feel so guilty now, I don't know what was up with him or what was going on, how did he go? I can't believe it. I prayed to GOD for that year about Sean on and off like usual and now I find he's gone... and I'll never get another bowl of weed to smoke with him again, but I know you're in peace, however it happened. I just hope you get justice my brother, my friend. I haven't cried yet but it hasn't fully hit me yet. It really hasn't. You deserved a good life. I'm glad I got to spend it with you, at your house, up north, and all over straight down the highway brother, I know I'll speak to you as I'm a seer and I'll talk to you at your grave, I love you man and I love Andrew and Chris and your Mom and Dad are spectacular parents. I know they are proud of you brother. They just wanted you longer. I guess you just went early. I will see you again. Be at peace like always Sean. ;”

“ Sean was my best friend, a brother even it sucks I was going through some troubles when this happened it still breaks my heart today I think about you every day ppl act like this is just normal but it's not you we're ever to me we spoke daily the couple weeks we had made plans to hang out and I was too busy so things got pushed back I blame myself every day for not making the time. No one knew you like I did we shared clothes shoes everything you were my brother from a different mom for real I hope that you're with God looking down on me because I need you more than ever everytime I think about my best friend I break down I wasn't even there to say my goodbye and that hurt so this is my way of trying to make up for that I love you bro you will always be missed in my heart
