Vinny i'm going to miss you so much. You were the only guy I had left really to Jerry. We loved you 31 years ago we met you and Lynn and we've been a good friends ever since it's gonna be hard not to be able to talk to you anymore, but I can still talk with Lynn if I ever figure out how to call her or anything like that, I would use your number and I called but it's been disconnected now and I don't have Lynn's!! I'll figure it out tho. I know we're in a lot of pain towards the end. If you're not of any no more pain, you get a whole body again and you're up there with God his arms around you and I hope you see Jerry soon if you've not already seen him. I love you Vinny gonna miss you and give Jerry a hug for me. Tell him I miss him almost years now I love him so much. I love you both Sue.

“ Our lifelong friendship has always been so solid and I will cherish that forever.
Vince's amazing personality rubbed off on all of us! He always kept his family and country 1st. May the bonds he instilled in all of you linger forever! Stay strong through this difficult time and keep those happy memories ready for the appropriate time; when we can share those with each other!
Much love Charlene

“ Honestly, I don't even know where to start. We met Vince and Lynn at Greenwood Acres, they were our neighbors and we all had a instant connection and they became family. If we ever needed anything Vince was always there to help. I moved in there about 4 years ago in May, then my girlfriend and her husband got in just a couple weeks after me and was even able to get 2 spots down from me. We had a empty spot between us and the campground kept telling us it was taken but we never seen anyone there. One day Crystal and I were at the beach and here came Vince. He tells us he went up to the office and talked to them and that spot is available but we have to go up there right now. So, we packed up and went up there. I told Crystal that Vince is messing with my tanning time and I laughed.....lol. But he was absolutely right, she was able to move right next to me and we have been there even since. From that day on our friendships just got stronger. He would come over every morning and have coffee, but of course not until after he had made Lynn breakfast, what a great husband. If he came over at night, after I had a couple drinks, he sure would hear some great stories (winky washer) It's not as dirty as it sounds.....lol. He was always a great sport. We loved playing corn hole with them, even though they would kick our butts every time. He loved being at the campground and I can't even tell you how much I am going to miss him. This absolutely breaks my heart and I pretty much cried the whole time I was writing this. Until I see you again. Love you Vince. XOXO
