“My Uncle Bill was the epitome of love. He was a big part of the glue that held our family together. He had been battling IPF for awhile as was ecstatic at the opportunity at a new set of lungs. However, with all the complications that followed we knew. We all knew. But no matter how prepared you are for the death of someone close, when it occurs, there is a wave of sadness that washes over you at some point. My emotional wave overtook me later that evening while driving home and fondly thinking about him.

He regularly called to ask how I was feeling or to just say he loved me. He always made an effort to keep that connection. He loved visiting the family and would always think of someone else's well being before his own. Like many, his bark was bigger than his bite. His heart was 20 times larger than that of a normal human being. He lived in the light of Jesus and it radiated from his soul. He will truly be missed.

Our family glue lost a little of its sticking power last week. We must now work on a new formula to honor him and the love he shared. We will pull together somehow and pick up the peices but it's not going to be easy.

Rest in peace in the arms of the angels as they carry you to heaven. We love you Uncle Bill.

He loved each and every one of his great nieces and nephews. He was a "GREAT Uncle" and was so proud of that.
